

BRIEF MENTION.

There are several cases of mumps in the city.

The candidates have begun work in earnest.

Colds and sore throats are quite prevalent in the city.

A few more blank receipts on hand, dear delinquents.

Read the new advertisement of the New York Cash Store.

Eggs are plentiful in the city. They are worth ten cents a dozen.

The recent frosts and freezes have somewhat disheartened the early gardeners.

See notice of a meeting of the Stockholders of the Building and Loan Association.

Sportsmen, make good use of your time. The hunting season expires next Saturday.

Be sure to make your own meat and bread, if you do not make ten pounds of cotton.

Mr. Thomas J. Lamotte, traveling agent for the Columbia Register, is in the city last week.

It is stated that Col. J. L. Orr, the efficient Solicitor of this Circuit, is a candidate for re-election.

The farmers have not as yet been able to do much on their farms, on account of the wet weather.

A meeting will be held at Lowndesville today in the interest of the Savannah Valley Railroad.

It will soon be in order to re-organize the Democratic Clubs and prepare for the approaching campaign.

Capt. T. C. Ligon is nominated for Judge of Probate, and Mr. W. F. Cox for County Treasurer, in this issue.

A few bales of cotton occasionally put in appearance in the city. The price has not varied much recently.

Mr. J. L. Fant, whose dwelling-house was blown down by the recent cyclone, has commenced rebuilding.

A full attendance of the members of Anderson Division, Sons of Temperance, is earnestly desired this evening.

The prisoners sentenced to the Penitentiary at the recent term of Court were carried to Columbia last Monday.

When daughters are infants, mothers are anxious to keep matches out of their reach. It is different when they grow up.

The farmers continue to haul away the fertilizers. We presume they are making preparations for a big cotton crop.

A number of peach trees in the city are in full bloom. Last year nearly all the trees were in bloom by the 1st of March.

Some of the prognosticators say we are not going to have any more cold weather. We wouldn't bet our last year's straw hat on it.

It is said that one of our citizens, whenever the wind begins to blow, goes down into his cellar and remains there until it falls.

In looking around for your Spring goods, watch our advertising columns and you will know right where to go to get what you want.

Hand-painted suspenders are now worn, but lots of men will continue to hold up their pants with a leather belt fastened with a shingle nail.

The attention of those wanting native or forest trees, shrubbery, vines, &c., is directed to the advertisement of Mr. W. R. Earle in this issue.

This is the season of the year when people should be careful of their fires, unless they wish to move rather suddenly and not make much with them.

Mr. J. H. vonHasseln will insure your property against cyclones, storms, &c. Call on him for particulars. His advertisement will appear next week.

The wise advertiser is he who makes the most effort in dull times. His voice is then heard all the more distinctly because so many of his rivals are silent.

Improvements are going on in almost every part of the city. Despite the cry of hard times, the contractors anticipate a lively business this Spring and Summer.

The Young America Cornet Band, of this city, contemplate going to Abbeville at an early day to give a concert. The boys will be chaperoned by Col. J. W. Trowbridge.

Call around to Dr. Johnston's store, on South Main street, and try his new cigar—Tannill's Punch. We have sampled them, and recommend them to all lovers of good cigars.

Next week's paper will be the last one issued from our present quarters. After that time we can be found in our new building in Whitner street, opposite the County Auditor's office.

Mr. Edward E. Bomar, assumed the editorial chair of the Spartanburg Herald. We extend him the right hand of fellowship, and trust he will find journalism both pleasant and profitable.

Married, at the residence of Mr. S. S. Rickland, on Monday, 3rd inst., by Rev. W. T. Tibble, Capt. W. M. Falks, of Carroll County, Va., and Miss Alice Armstrong, of this County.

The Anderson Dramatic Club will present that popular play, "Emeralda," in the Masonic Hall on Friday evening, 21st inst. It is an interesting play, and those who attend will not regret it.

Remember, when you bring an announcement of a candidate for office for insertion in this paper, you have to plunk up five dollars in advance. This is our rule, and deviation is made from it.

We notice with pleasure that our young friend Jas. T. McGinn has been promoted to assistant editor of the Hartwell Sun. Jim is a clever, worthy boy, and will doubtless make his mark in the newspaper profession.

Mr. Columbus Wardlaw and wife leave Anderson today for Jefferson, Ga., where they will in future reside. They have the warm wishes of a host of friends in this city for their happiness and prosperity in their new home.

We are authorized to state that all persons who have failed to pay their city taxes can do so with the penalty added on, and on the 20th inst., after which time no remissions will be made from the collection according to law.

The attention of our readers is directed to the spectacle advertisement of Mr. J. A. Anieles. This is the last time it will appear, and we advise you to cut it out and keep it in some convenient place, then you can always test your eye sight and tell when you need a pair of spectacles. Mr. Anieles is sole agent in this city for King's spectacles.

Keep the money moving. Don't salt it away. Pay your debts as fast as you can. Have patience with one another. Buy your goods of home merchants. Encourage home enterprise, and give your patronage to our own mechanics and we will all prosper.

When a young woman trips daintily into the parlor and explains her delayed appearance by remarking that she had been "washing mamma wipe the dishes," it is pretty hard to refrain from proposing on the spot; but go slow, my boy, go slow. She may be fooling thee.

The Cotton Plant, a forty column paper, published monthly at Marion, S. C., by W. J. McKerrall, should be in the house of every planter in the State. It is well printed, ably edited and brim full of useful information to the farmer. Price 60 cents a year; six months, 35 cents; three months, 20 cents. Single copies, 5 cents.

John Gwinn, white, who was sentenced to the Penitentiary for life at the October term of Court for burning a house in Belton township, but who has been in the County Jail awaiting the decision of the Supreme Court upon a motion for a new trial, has been adjudged a lunatic and sent to the State Asylum.

Maj. A. S. Todd, of our neighbor the Journal, has been appointed Clerk of the Congressional Committee on Education at Washington, D. C., and left last Monday for that city to enter at once upon his duties. Hon. D. Wyatt Aiken is Chairman of this Committee. Maj. Todd will make an efficient Clerk. We congratulate him upon his appointment.

Our citizens were somewhat alarmed by the severity of the wind and the heavy rainfall on last Sunday morning, about 4 o'clock. It was thought by many to be another cyclone. It seems to have been general all over the County. In several sections considerable hail fell, some of the stones as large as guinea eggs. We have heard of no damage. The wind, however, blew down considerable fencing and dead timber.

We cordially welcome the Southern Cultivator for March to our desk. In addition to its customary monthly advice, its answers to inquiries and the articles contributed by that veteran and triumphant farmer, Mr. David Dickson, it is replete with articles of interest and value on every subject which is allied in any manner to the pursuit of agriculture. As we turn page after page we are delighted with its varied contents, and feel that the man or the woman who applies $1.10 in connection with our journal, in payment for a year's subscription thereto, makes a wise and profitable investment.

The Barnwell People voices our sentiment in the following: "The candidacy for Democratic nominations in our County promises to be large and lively. This journal will, as in past campaigns, favor a free and fair fight. It will not give editorial aid and comfort to any aspirant. Its columns will be open to communications from candidates and their backers who will furnish cash to the printer and arguments to the public. No others will be admitted. The people of the County want good servants, and every man must run on his own merits. They who trust to cliques and combinations will surely come to grief and tote the trail."

A correspondent of the Rural New-Yorker describes the following method by which an extraordinary crop of watermelons was raised: Holes were dug ten feet apart each way, eighteen inches square and fifteen inches deep. These holes were filled with wellrotten manure, which was thoroughly incorporated with the soil. A low, flat hill was then made and seed planted. When the vines were large enough to begin to run, the whole surface was covered to the depth of a foot or fifteen inches with wheat-straw. The straw was placed close up around the vines. No cultivation whatever was given afterward; no weeds or grass grew. The vines spread over the straw, and the melons matured clean and nice. The yield was abundant, and the experiment an entire success. This plan is surely worth trying.

Hate not. It is not worth while. Your life is not long enough to make it pay to cherish ill will or hard thoughts toward anyone. What if that man has cheated you or that woman played you false? What if this friend has forsaken you in your time of need, or that one having won your utmost confidence, your warmest love, has concluded that he prefers to consider and treat you as a stranger? Let it all pass. What difference will it make to you in a few years, when you go hence to the "undiscovered country?" All who treat you wrong now will be more sorry for it than you, even in your deepest disappointment and grief can be. A few more smiles, a few more tears, some pleasure, much pain, a little longer hurrying and worrying in the world, some hasty greetings and abrupt farewells, and life will be over, and the injured and the injured will be laid away, and are long forgotten. It is not worth while to hate each other.

The Negro Exodus to Arkansas.

On last Monday afternoon long before the time for the arrival of the up-train crowds of negroes—men, women and children—could be seen wending their way to the depot, and considerable excitement seemed to be prevailing among them. It was another party of emigrants leaving for Arkansas. With that curiosity characteristic of a newspaper scribe we went to the depot to see them off. Arriving there we found a very large crowd of negroes, the majority of them women, standing on the platform and the ground adjacent, awaiting the train. The arrival of Barnum's show could not have drawn a larger crowd. Gazing on the crowd, we thought if they were all going to leave, the city would surely be depopulated of the "colored brother." We inquired of the agents how many tickets had been sold, and were informed that only twenty-seven had been purchased. There were several small children in the party, and this would make the number of emigrants over thirty.

We made our way through the crowd, inquiring of nearly every man if he was going off. All of them gave us a negative answer. Finally we came across one who replied in the affirmative. He was apparently about thirty years old, and dressed in an old worn-out suit of clothes. Strapped across his back he carried an old musket, and in one hand held a budget of clothes and in the other an old quilt or two.

"You look like you are fixed for traveling," said we to him. If he had money he would have taken a first class ticket, wouldn't he?" he replied.

"Where are you going?"

"Kansas."

"You are not going where the others are, then? They are going to Arkansas."

"Dat's de place. We all's gwine to stop at Little Rock."

"What are you going to do there?"

"Oh, I's gwine to work. I kin git twenty dollars a month out dar working on de farm, an' won't have to work hard at de't."

We then asked him out there. He replied, in substance, that he could get a ticket at Seneca City and pay for it after he arrived at his destination. At this juncture of the conversation the whistles of the approaching train sounded and the darkies moved away from us.

As the train rolled up the excitement increased, some of the women singing, in a loud tone, "Gitt on board, little chillun." You could hardly hear your ears for the continuous talking, all of their tongues moving at once, bidding the emigrants good-bye and telling them they hoped soon to join them in their new home. The train rolled off and we could not miss those that had gone.

We are told that quite a number of men and boys left the city Sunday afternoon about, going to Seneca City, where they took the cars. This makes perhaps seventy-five or eighty negroes that have emigrated. We understand that another party expect to leave next Saturday or Monday.

The emigration spirit seems to be spreading all over the County. As yet we are unable to learn the cause of the sudden movement. We surmise, however, that it has been slowly and silently worked up by some of their designing leaders, who, it is said, receive from two to five dollars from the emigration agents for every ticket purchased. We can attribute the movement to nothing else, for we venture there is not a County in the State where the negroes, as a whole, are in better condition than those of Anderson County. There are quite a number of them who own farms, well stocked with farming implements, stock, &c., and who have good credit. This class, however, do not seem to be affected with a desire to emigrate. It is confined, to a great degree, to their worthless, thriftless brother, who is easily duped by any scheming or designing party that comes along.

Arkansas is a fine agricultural State, and if they will go there and go to work, economize and cease roving about from place to place, they will thrive and prosper. If they go there, however, under the delusion that they will not have to work for a living they will be badly disappointed.

An Alleged Abduction.

The Greenville correspondent of the News and Courier gives the following account of an unfortunate scandal which involves a family of good standing at Williamston in this County:

Quite a sensation was created in Greenville on last Monday by the arrest of J. H. Foulk, one of the passenger conductors of the Columbia and Greenville Railroad, charged with the abduction of a young girl of Williamston, a student of the Williamston Female College and a daughter of a respectable gentleman of that town. The circumstances so far as developed are these: A pretty young girl, probably about 15 or 16 years of age, arrived here on Thursday night last by the train of which Mr. Foulk was conductor, and was accompanied by him to the Mansion House, where he registered her under the fictitious name of Della Brewer of Grove Station. That night she was escorted to the opera by Mr. Foulk. On Friday morning the girl took Mr. Foulk's train to Greenwood, and it is known here that she went to Augusta. The father of the girl had the police notified here on Saturday of her flight with the request that she be apprehended and detained, and he also asked for the arrest of Foulk. This morning the latter was taken with a warrant issued by Trial Justice Furman upon the affidavit of a policeman, the charge being abduction. The girl's father arrived here this morning, and for some time it was thought a shooting scrape would follow. Foulk was, however, taken before the justice, and the prosecution not being ready for the investigation the preliminary hearing was put off until Wednesday. Foulk was freed on a bond of $500, which he readily succeeded in giving. Without being able to give the facts as they went out in the official investigation, I will give what seems to be the best authenticated version and theory of the case from the side of the prosecution. It is believed that the girl had been passing between Foulk and the girl as the regular passenger on the train, and that he had been off as a single man, while he has a wife and several children in Columbia, of which city he is a resident. It is the belief of the father that Foulk deliberately abducted his daughter under promise of marriage.

Foulk denies the whole matter so far as criminal intent on his part is concerned. He says after the girl boarded his train on Thursday she handed him a slip of paper containing the name of Della Brewer and requested him to have her registered at the Mansion House under that name, stating that she was running away from her parents. He states also that his escorting her to the opera was by her request, that she went on his train to Greenwood on Friday of her own motion, and that after putting her off at Greenwood he knew no more of her movements or whereabouts. He says he regarded it his duty as conductor to wait upon the girl and register her at the hotel where she had requested, and that he advised her to return to her parents. The latter statement he says he can prove by good witnesses, and that he will prove also that while the girl's room at the Mansion House was in close proximity to his he occupied his usual room, having a regular boarder at the Mansion House, and that the male companions who occupied the room with him that night will testify that he did not go about the room and that he was going to run away and get married. There are grains of evidence contained in what is talked of sub rosa that weigh heavily against Mr. Foulk. One of the points against him is that while he denied knowing the whereabouts of the girl, after leaving her at Greenwood, the information is left in it in way regarded as making it certain that he not only knew the girl was in Augusta, but gave to persons here the name of the street and the number of the house in which she could be found in that city. Future developments will verify or contradict this and other points about which there is room for doubt and controversy. If he is guilty of the abduction there is no evidence in the facts so far developed to show that the wicked design of such a scheme was consummated. The preliminary examination on Wednesday will excite great interest. It is believed by persons here that the affair will end in bloodshed, but there have been no actual demonstrations toward violence so far. It is rumored that public sentiment is strong against Foulk at Williamston. In Greenville the same sentiment prevails, but it is tempered with an "if," as the principal part of the evidence must come from Williamston, and the general public in this locality know but little of the circumstances of the affair.

The young lady involved in this escapade is Miss Elsie Johnson, daughter of Mr. J. D. Johnson, and a pupil of the Williamston Female College. She is a pretty and accomplished young lady, and the affair is to be deeply regretted. We understand that she was followed to Augusta and brought back to Williamston. We have been unable to obtain any further details of the affair, but we hope both on account of the lady and her parents that it may turn out to be only a foolish prank of the young lady, without any moral wrong on her part.
